

TWISTED ISSUES

MANAGED PERSPECTIVES

I want to discuss an issue that has been in the news of late. This issue is being managed/manipulated for the benefit of an evil system and evil people. But the people pulling the strings are not the ones getting attention.

What I'm referring to is the racial uproar and the riots being triggered from shootings by police. Ferguson, Missouri was ground zero for the explosion of racial tensions after an unarmed Black kid was shot and killed by a Ferguson policeman. This was not an isolated incident.

It appears that Americans are once again being set up by the news agencies who publish the questions they want asked, and then publish the prescribed answers. People's minds aren't allowed to stray from the managed perspectives of the politicians, churches, and news agencies. Thus, the public mind can be directed to accept whatever ends the controllers prefer.

Americans have accepted centuries of religious and political manipulation of their minds. They have proven to be easy prey for those who manage the public mind; i.e., agents of the Beast System.

The majority of Americans are willing captives of a planned strategy to box them into two camps: so-called "Liberal," or so-called "Conservative." The controllers who create the two "boxes" (paradigms) have also given prescribed definitions for the people trapped in the boxes.

These two ideological boxes imprison the minds of Americans to control their thinking. People are being led into "Paradigmatic Reasoning." This is a mental trap that funnels all observations into a preformed mental picture (a paradigm). Instead of letting their observations shape their understanding, they let their paradigms shape their observations without considering options. This is classic prejudice, and it always means shallow thinking.

This occurs especially when people are evaluating issues in religion and politics. In other words, paradigmatic thinkers tend to sort issues by categorizing them into either "Liberal" or "Conservative" camps. It is a naive, oversimpli-fied, and lazy method of evaluating issues of life. But it serves the purposes of those who control the public mind.

This manipulated dichotomy herds people's minds into very confined mental quarters. It gives people a small world with childish and foolish answers to life's issues.

In today's world, those who accept the label of "Conservative" tend to identify with Republicans, and those who accept the label of "Liberal" identify with Democrats. Thus, both restrict themselves into even smaller ideological boxes.

Baseless and ridiculous arguments are encouraged between these ideological cripples, and they rage constantly. It is surprising how off-point and hypocritical some of their arguments can turn.

Today, Americans are known around the world as over-enthusiastic and shallow ... led and dominated by programmers. These mental handicaps come as a result of churches, schools, and news agencies. All things are funneled into two simple categories: conservative (Republican) or liberal (Democrat). People's minds are trapped within these two boxes. "Liberals" think "Conservatives" are uneducated and narrow minded. "Conservatives" think "Liberals" are unprincipled and dishonest. Both are pawns pitted against each other by intellectuals at the top who manipulate the masses to benefit the 1%.

NARROW MINDS

When all observations and thoughts are force-fitted into two small boxes, people become fearful and unable to think outside those established parameters. Thinking outside the box is deemed unreasonable and crazy. Jesus was accused of having "a demon" for his out-of-the-box thinking.

Beneficial answers and options can be completely overlooked or rejected without even consideration. Prejudices can rule men's minds to the point that "out-of-the-box-thinking" is looked upon as blasphemy or social suicide. Thus, mental programming keeps the herds of people mentally corralled and pacified, unable to object to, or even to see, the machinations and plans of the 1%.

In this environment, issues are easily manipulated to be perceived in ways that are unrealistic but paradigmatically acceptable. They get categorized under the two headings: "Liberal" or "Conservative." And there the issue is contained no matter what the question may be. Prescribed "Liberal" reasoning, or prescribed "Conservative" reasoning is applied to every issue that arises. And none of these captive minds realize that the 1% control and manage both camps, both "Liberals" and "Conservatives." People are blinded to reality.

So, people cannot analyze what they cannot see. But what if their eyes were opened to a real, viable alternative way of thinking? What if people were enabled to consider the issues and problems of society in terms of a different paradigm that had been lost to our ancestors in the distant past? What if the problems of society didn't have to be force-fitted into those two boxes prescribed by the 1%?

Here's the point. The answers to what is actually behind these manipulated issues, as in Ferguson, Missouri, etc., cannot be understood based on the fabricated paradigms of "Liberal" vs. "Conservative." These are not merely racial conflicts. Stay with me and I'll explain more.

CONTROLLING THE MASSES

In recent months we've been shown, via TV and Internet, a series of needless killings by police. The victims that made news headlines were mostly young Blacks. The one incident that sparked a national outrage was a shooting of a Black kid by a white cop in Ferguson, Missouri last August. Then other killings by cops began getting news coverage.

In November, a 12-year-old Black boy playing with a plastic toy gun in a park in Cleveland was shot and killed by a Cleveland policeman. This was caught on camera.

Other shootings by cops were caught on cell phone cameras and posted on Youtube for everyone to see.

In December, a group of New York City police surrounded a nonviolent, unarmed Black man on a sidewalk. One of the policemen, assisted by his fellow officers, came from behind and got him around his neck in a choke hold and choked him to death. All this was caught on camera.

Another unarmed Black man was shot and killed earlier (in January) in Houston by a "law enforcement officer." All these killer cops got off without punishment or loss of jobs.

America saw these few headlines, but killings like these are common. Victims are from all races (not just Blacks) every year. It isn't just a race issue. These incidents are being repeated over and over. In America, cops killed 1100 people in 2014, and 1800 in 2013 according to a private website dedicated to keeping track. And now we are hearing about a few incidents around the country where civilians are shooting cops. Most of the irate men shooting cops are White ... but the ones we hear most about are the Black ones. Again, news agencies are playing the race card because they know it gets attention, and it starts trouble.

When police kill citizens they are almost always declared to have acted within approved rules of conduct, and they receive no reprimand. But anyone who kills a cop usually gets killed right on the scene or shortly after.

I might add that unnecessary bullying by police is not a new thing ... nor is it only toward Blacks. All races, including White women, children, and even their dogs ... are common victims of police brutality and shootings. Blacks are not the only victims, but they seem to be the only ones who get riled enough to protest ... so they stand out.

The airing of these recent killings, both on TV and on Internet, has caused Black communities to protest and riot, especially in Missouri. Thousands of protestors and rioters, Black and non-Black, from many states organized in cities from California to New York. And, as usual, violence taints these public marches and protests. So that violence, above all else, gets the attention of most people. The inevitable chaos of protests is the issue that grabs people's attention although it results in very few, if any, deaths.

People watching the news from their homes don't like seeing mobs and riots. So they tend to conclude that the victims deserved to be shot because "they were trouble makers, and police are only doing their jobs."

The public tends to believe statements from cops more than statements from the victims, or from witnesses in defense of the victims. In short, Americans don't like to find fault with cops ... much like they don't want to find fault with soldiers, even when they kill unarmed old men, women and children. Those who think war is honorable and soldiers are heroes should watch Winter Soldiers on YouTube. There were two: one of Vietnam veterans and one of Iraq veterans. Both groups testify of atrocities against innocent people.

In this current upset, most people are choosing sides based on race. As I said before, it is easy to get Americans into race arguments. Again, the root of the problem gets covered up and ignored.

Clearly there is a problem here that deserves attention. However, the politicians, the news agencies, and the protest organizers (and funders) are reshaping the public's thinking so that false issues draw attention, and the real issues are getting swept under the rug.

RESHAPING THE ISSUE

The real issue in this case is NOT race. The real issue is the system itself, including the cops. The whole system is built upon a criminal, Babylonian/Roman philosophy. There is no way to make that system work for justice and freedom. It was conceived and established for one thing only: to empower and enrich a class of plutocratic rulers over a huge class of servants. Babylon is the mother of this system. Rome was her daughter. And the US Government is her current daughter ... still speaking as the "Dragon" (Rev. 13:11-12), and still based on Babylonian principles. It is an evil system with wrong and evil laws. There is no way for this system to be anything other than criminal, because there is no right way to do a wrong thing. People will never get good answers from this wrong and evil Beast System.

So the controllers today are pushing the race issue to escalate fear and hatred between the races, garner financial support, and build a pretext for enlarging and strengthening the police state. They use the pretext of racial prejudice because it is an issue that gets attention and diverts people from the real issues.

The issue of a criminal system and its unlawful “standing armies” gets twisted into other issues to divert gullible Americans from the truth and from reality.

It is an astute political move. The politicians and news agencies know from experience that Americans, both Black and White, are always quick to get on board an argument about race. Plus, both sides already have their minds set. The Blacks are sure that the Whites are the problem, and the Whites are sure that the Blacks are the problem.

Thus, the racial argument ensues and the real cause is covered up. Both sides are being played against each other as a smoke screen to cover the fact that the Beast System is shaping the issue and profiting from it.

The racial problem is an issue worth considering, but it is not the issue behind the cop problem. The criminal system, run by bankers and politicians, has encouraged and facilitated racial/cultural integration into American society. Everyone knows that contrasting races/cultures should not be forced together. All races/cultures, if left alone, prefer to live and work among their own. But America has been made a “melting pot” where diverse races and cultures have been forced to mix together in common living areas called “cities.” This goes against every law of nature and common sense. Races/cultures should never be uprooted and moved into other strange cultures. To do so destroys both cultures while creating hatred and misery.

That is the truth of the real race issue. But that is not the issue at hand. That is not what’s behind the police problems. Racial prejudice may be a factor in the troubles, but there is a greater issue at the root of the problem. It is the issue of cops against all citizens.

SERVE AND PROTECT WHO?

Police and sheriff badges and insignias often sport the motto “To Serve & Protect.” Everyone has heard it. It sounds good, and it gives cops the status of heroes.

But the question is, who do cops serve and protect? Do they serve and protect you? Do they make you feel safe? Or do you fear them and avoid them? How would you say that cops think of you?

A. As a friend, having your best interests at heart?

- or -

B. As someone to distrust, to surveil and control?

I know which one best describes how they think of me ... and it isn’t “friendly.”

So, I conclude that their motto, “To Serve And Protect” doesn’t apply to me ... and I don’t think it applies to you.

To whom, then, does it apply?

Well, cops have employers. They are hired and paid by someone. Those who hire them, train them, and write their pay checks are the ones they work for. Right? So who is that? Who do these law enforcers serve and protect?

That’s right. They work for the governments and the corporations who give them their jobs and make their laws.

They don’t work for the lowly common man.

So ... there you are. Now you know who cops work for, and who they don’t work for; who they serve, and who they don’t serve.

That leaves you and me out ... which shouldn’t come as a surprise. Cops don’t serve and protect you and me. In fact, we (the public) are the ones police are hired to guard against. We are their targets. Government and corporations hire cops to protect them from the public. Hmmm. That means that their laws and their law enforcers are against us. No wonder they surveil us! No wonder they corral and control us. No wonder they shoot us. We are “the enemy,” and police training (cadet training) teaches cops to view the public as their first concern: their number one threat. Some cops may realize this, but most are probably too dumb and macho to realize that they are enemies of the people.

Did you think they are trained to help you? Really? Did you also think that the purpose of the US Military is to protect and help this country? Can you name one time they protected America from an external threat?

They didn’t protect Pearl Harbor in 1941. In fact, Roosevelt and the Navy were complicit in the attack.

It didn’t protect the WTC from the 9-11 attack in 2001. In fact, the whole thing was orchestrated from inside the White House and the Pentagon.

No. The actions of the US Military have been to subjugate other nations for the benefit of international corporations ... not to protect America. It is nothing but the enforcement arm of the international bankers to facilitate their raping of the planet. The highly recognized and decorated WW1 General, Smedly Butler, said it right when he stated that as a general he had been fighting wars to make the world safe for Standard Oil and other powerful corporations.

It is ironic when you think about it. What a con job! Politicians and bankers hire standing armies (police and military) to guard their criminal enterprises. Then they tax citizens to fund their armies, telling the people that cops and soldiers “serve and protect” the public.

But who would be silly enough to be tricked by this crude deception? Well, sadly, just about everyone. People may not realize that life can go on without cops and professional soldiers (mercenaries). Plus, they may not know that there is a viable and sensible alternative to professional politicians and government-hired mercenary gunmen (i.e., cops and soldiers). Keep reading and I’ll explain.

The whole thing is actually pretty sad. But things do make more sense to you once you know where you stand in the eyes of the Beast System and its standing armies - national, state, county, and city.

There are some brilliant writers exposing the police state today. You should research this subject. One such writer is former assistant US Treasurer, Paul Craig Roberts. Read his articles at <http://www.paulcraigroberts.org/>.

THE SYSTEM

When a person first begins to catch wind of the truth explained above, he generally assumes that this problem has come as the result of some great mistake. He may assume that people were irresponsible and somehow allowed the system to fall into disorder. Or perhaps a few evil men crept into the system unawares and perverted it.

It's a nice theory, but it couldn't be more wrong. The system isn't broken ... it was created this way. The system is based upon Babylonian/Roman principles of government. The Bible refers to this man-made system as a "Beast." I call it "The Beast System." The American people have opted for this Beast System and rejected God's System ... much like Israel did in 1 Samuel 8:4-22. The Beast System violates every Bible principle including law enforcement. God gave man reasonable instructions for laws and law enforcement, but those instructions are intentionally rejected in the US system, and they are replaced with man-made laws and law enforcement.

God's way of governing society is, frankly, so different from the Beast System's way of governing that most people today would reject it out of hand. Their minds have been so programmed, so inured to the serpent mindset, that they would reject God Himself in favor of the Beast System.

But let us see if we can create some new thoughts by going to the Bible for answers instead of going to the Beast.

GOD'S SYSTEM – Q&A

You already know how the Beast System handles issues of law and law enforcement, so I won't go into that. Instead, I'll give you some answers as to how God's System is different, particularly in law and law enforcement.

Q1: Who is supposed to make our laws?

A1: No one is supposed to make law. All law is already made. It was given by God. Our duty is not to make our own laws, but rather to apply the laws that God has given us.

Q2: Where do we find God's laws?

A2: God's laws are taught in the Bible ... mostly in the Old Testament books of Moses.

Q3: Aren't the Old Testament laws obsolete?

A3: God's laws never change. But covenants can change. The Old Covenant came into existence in Moses' day. It brought with it "ADDED" laws – laws that were ADDED (Gal. 3:19) to the already existing laws of God. Those ADDED LAWS were covenant laws, and they were applicable only as long as that Covenant was applicable. It was abandoned in 1 Sam. 8.

Q4: According to God's system, how do the police, the courts, and the prisons work?

A4: In God's system there are no legislatures, no policemen, no lawyers, no prisons. Study both books of Judges. God's judges are not hired or bribed, and God's courts are elders who hear cases and render judgments.

Q5: What about the separation of church & state?

A5: In God's system there is no church & state per se. The nation looks much different since there is no legislature, no politicians, no government, and thus no government-empowered courts, no taxing powers, no standing armies. Instead, God's system is law and justice. You see, the Roman-style system of church & state is all wrong. That's why we can never be free, resolve problems of society, or find good answers as long as we accept this system.

Q6: How would God's laws be enforced without policemen, lawyers, courts, and prisons?

A6: Laws would be enforced by the people; you and me, without hired mercenary thugs (police). Crimes or complaints would be brought before a panel of elders who understand God's laws and are able to apply those principles to resolve issues. The elders (judges) would render their decision. That decision would settle the matter at law, and the correct remedy would be declared. If the decision is against the defendant, then he would have the opportunity to abide by the decision and comply with the law. If he refused to abide by the decision, he would be declared an "outlaw" (i.e., he would be "outside the law") and he would forfeit his access to the courts and the protection of the law.

Enforcement? Here's how that works. If the elders/judges hearing the case find the accused guilty, and if they agree on a punishment in accordance with Bible law, that verdict would stand. But it would fall to the aggrieved party (and his/her family) to enforce the verdict, collect the fine, take retribution, etc. ... even if it is a death sentence. If the aggrieved party elects to not enforce the verdict, then the defendant would go unpunished, and it would bring shame upon the aggrieved party.

However, if the aggrieved party is unable (infirm, frail, or too elderly) to enforce the sentence, he/she may appoint an "avenger of blood" (i.e., a champion) to enforce the sentence for him/her.

In the case where a man kills some one by accident or by unintended negligence, the man can flee to an appointed "city of refuge" where he is safe from the avenger of blood.

Here are the passages that explain these points. I don't have room to quote them, so look in your Bible and read them for yourself.

Apportioned authority, low & high courts – Ex. 18:19-26

Punishment for turning after false gods – Lev. 20:1-7

Punishment for blaspheming God – Lev. 24:13-23

Cities of refuge and revengers of blood – Nu. 35:9-34

Appointing elders/judges – Dt. 1:13-18

Law enforced by all the people – Dt. 13:1-11; 17:6-13

Punishment for rebellious son – Dt. 21:18-21

Punishment for unchastity – Dt. 22:13-21

Cities of refuge and revengers of blood – Josh. 20:1-9

Ten Commandments = basis for all law – Ex. 20:1-17

Under God's law there is true justice and freedom. The principles contained in these laws, applied correctly, are the answers to every civil question and every issue at law in any society. If they sound strange to you it is only because you have been mentally programmed to reject them.
